

Heath Curtiss is General Counsel and Director of Government Affairs for the Oregon Forest & Industries Council. OFIC is a trade association representing Oregon's large timberland owners and forest product manufacturing firms. Heath's practice focuses on endangered species, forest practices, clean water, and clean air regulation. Prior to OFIC, Heath was an attorney at Stoel Rives LLP where he practiced in the Environment, Land Use, and Natural Resources Group. Heath received a degree in Agricultural and Resource Economics from Oregon State University and a Certificate in Environmental Law from Lewis & Clark Law School.

Nick Cady is the Legal Director of Cascadia Wildlands based out of Eugene, Oregon. Nick grew up in St. Louis, playing in the rivers of the Missouri Ozarks. He attended Truman State University where he received degrees in political and environmental science. Nick then traveled west to attend law school at the University of Oregon which he graduated from in 2011. When he is not litigating over irresponsible land management and protections for imperiled species, Nick coaches high school soccer.
