

Chris Winter is Co-Executive Director at Crag Law Center, a non-profit law firm in Portland, Oregon. For almost twenty years, he has been representing public interest clients on a wide of range of natural resources issues in federal and state courts. His firm has worked to defeat four fossil fuel export terminals in Oregon, prevented Shell from drilling in the Arctic on behalf of indigenous communities, filed the first case in the nation on ocean acidification, and for the past seven years he has been working on atmospheric trust litigation. He received his law degree from the University of Michigan in 1998 and received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Cornell University in 1994.