

Mike Freese is a lawyer, lobbyist, and advocate with a reputation for providing clients with thorough policy analysis and employing successful political strategies. In Oregon, Mike has served as in-house counsel for a statewide trade association and Vice President of the state's largest business association. Before returning to Oregon, Mike held several senior positions in Washington D.C. including as a Subcommittee Staff Director for the US Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works, Deputy Director for Congressional Affairs at the US Department of Interior and advisor to a US Senate Committee and US Senator. Mike holds a Bachelor's of Science from Oregon State University and law degree from Willamette College of Law. He is an eastern Oregon native who now lives in the Willamette Valley with his wife, Kelsey, and son Boyce.